Library
Service

Home Library Service

How does it work?

The Home Library Service delivers and exchanges library items to eligible Library customers on a regular basis.

Who is eligible?

This free service is for members who are unable to visit their local library in person, either temporarily or permanently. This includes people with a disability, chronic illness (including mental illness), fragility and limited mobility and their carers.

The Home Library Service can visit customers at their home or care facility. We also offer regular bulk deliveries to care facilities.

Note: There is often a waitlist for this popular home delivery service.

Self help

The Home Library Service also offers a Delivery Only service for eligible members who prefer to select their own items.

What does the service provide?

All borrowing materials available through the Central Coast Library Service are available through the Home Library Service.

These include:

- Fiction and Non Fiction books (including large print)
- Magazines
- Material in community languages
- Audiobooks and MP3s
- Music CDs
- DVDs

Electronic Resources such as eBooks, eAudiobooks, eMagazines, eMusic and information databases are also available via the Library's website libraries.centralcoast.nsw.gov.au/elibrary

(Ask us for help accessing these if required).

Getting started

If you are interested in receiving this service please contact your local Library or the Home Library Officers (HLO). The HLO will collect your details and contact you when a place is available. From there, we will work with you to develop a personal profile of your reading, watching or listening preferences.
